

HADDON LIBRARY NEWS

LENT 2021 (ISSUE 1)

HELLO FROM THE NEW LIBRARIAN

Hello. I'm Meg Westbury, the new Librarian for the Haddon Library. For the past 7 years, I have been the Librarian for Wolfson College (where I am still a Fellow), and before that was a librarian at the Cambridge Judge Business School. I'm an anthropologist at heart, however, having earned a BA and MA in cultural anthropology in the United States. I also just recently earned a PhD in technology-enhanced learning via Lancaster University. I'm really looking forward to getting to know the students and faculty of Archaeology and Social Anthropology this year!

THE HADDON LIBRARY DURING LENT TERM

It has been a year like no other. During Lent term 2021, the Haddon Library is here to help by:

- Being open from 10-1 GMT, M-F, for borrowing and returning books. You can book an appointment for collecting/returning books on the library website. Please do not come up to the library. The table in the building foyer is the collection/drop-off point for books this term.
- Being available to chat real time 2-5 pm GMT, M-F, if you have questions about accessing resources or searching for literature (or any other way we can help).
- Offering a series of online classes on literature searching, referencing and Zotero. The calendar of classes is on the library's website.

NEW ONLINE RESOURCES TO EXPLORE

The University Library recently announced on its blog, the acquisition of several important online resources for students and researchers. Two new databases of particular interest to anthropology and archaeology include:

- Anthropology Resource Library, an extensive collection of ethnographic videos, music recordings, field notes and other primary documents.
- World Heritage Sites, Africa, a versatile collection of more than 86,000 objects of visual, contextual, and spatial documentation of African heritage and rock art sites.

All 900+ databases that the university subscribes to are available from the Databases A-Z page, and are searchable by name, subject and type.

CLASSES AND WRITING SESSIONS FOR LENT TERM

The Haddon library is offering several online classes this term to sharpen your searching, referencing and writing skills:

- Effective Literature Searching for Dissertations
- Referencing for Academic Writing: Rules and Styles
- Referencing without Tears: An Introduction to Zotero
- Shut Up and Write (3-hour writing session for MPhils and PhDs)

Classes and writing sessions will be held throughout the term and are bookable from the library's website. We are looking forward to seeing you there!

GUIDES TO LEARNING ONLINE

Libraries, colleges and other offices at Cambridge have produced useful guides for students in all disciplines for navigating and managing the trickier aspects of online learning:

- Engineering Library - Online Learning
- Wolfson College - Working Remotely and Online Learning
- Cambridge Centre for Teaching and Learning - Guidance on Lecture Recordings for Students

TOOLS FOR ACCESSING INFORMATION REMOTELY

A new guide from the UL explains how to access library and other eresources (such as scholarly databases) when you're away from the university. Two tools in particular which make accessing resources easier:

- Lean Library (browser extension):
- LibKey Nomad (browser extension)

Both tools automatically connect university members to online resources subscribed by Cambridge University Libraries. You can install one or both!

Another great tool is BrowZine, which gives you full-text access to thousands of academic journals, sorted by title and subject (be sure to install the Cambridge version of BrowZine).
